Video to support induction programme

ARTICLE

A 30-minute video that uses a fun concept to communicate a serious safety message has greatly enhanced WBB Minerals™ induction process. The video, which is shown to all new and current employees and contractors, involves a computer-generated character which works its way around a board game. Each square on the board has a different health and safety topic, such as emergency procedures and incident reporting. When the character lands on a risk square, video users are asked a number of questions to test their knowledge of the issues. The video is part of a wider induction programme, prompting discussion and a deeper exploration of site-specific safety issues.
